The ezine of table shuffleboard

WEDNESDAY JULY 14, 2004

First win comes in Fir Cone tourney

SHELTON, Wash. -- Mario Briones-Joe Pazkowski, from the Burlington area north of Seattle, didn't lose a match Saturday and Sunday as they captured the championship in the Fir Cone Tavern's B/C doubles tournament.

The tournament became secondary to a player's health on Sunday afternoon when Sheltonite Russ Savage suffered a heart attack while playing in a match for third and fourth places.

Savage, a longtime Shelton player who competes in many tournaments on the Fir Cone boards, was taken to the Shelton Hospital before being transferred to an Olympia hospital where he received a pacemaker.

Fir Cone co-owner Jeanette Hohn said Russ' prognosis is good and he's expected to make a full recovery. Everyone in shuffleboard is awaiting Russ' return to the boards when he's feeling better.

Savage and his partner Russ Frazier, Shelton, finished fourth.

"It feels good to win a tourney," Briones said after he and Pazkowski tasted tournament victory number one. "It was not easy at all but we managed to play hard and come through."

Briones-Pazkowski defeated Penny Jorgensen-Jeanette Hohn, both of Shelton, in the championship match. Jorgensen-Hohn came back through the losers' bracket after dropping the winners' bracket final to Pazkowski-Briones.

Judy George, Tacoma, and Marci Putman, Port Orchard, claimed third place.

Hohn said 12 teams took part in the two-day event.

Plastic good for forks, not boards

by Jim Manders, publisher

It wasn't too long ago that the words "Do not drop weights," were stenciled onto most shuffleboards reminding players that everytime a puck hit the wood surface there was going to be a dent of some sort.

Now if you drop a weight on a board you could probably catch it on the first bounce as it caromed off the plastic surface. And there'd be no dent.

Let's just say that I miss shuffleboards with wood tops.

Yes, plastic is easier to apply, less expensive, easier to maintain and lasts longer. Great for owners who have to pay the cost of having boards resurfaced.

But, to me plastic tops are boring and they take some of the finesse out of the game.

Boring because most weights end up in the middle of the board, no matter where you throw them.

Power players take the finesse out of the game by blasting the powder off the board that leaves lagggers throwing through ruts.

Shuffleboard was born on wood and it's too bad that it's being covered up with a layer of plastic.

There's a certain romance to wooden topped shuffleboards. Maintenance is part of that romance.

The person who maintains a wood shuffleboard is in for an experience, but there are benefits.

Figuring out which paste wax, silicone spray and powder worked best together was almost an art form.

Would Johnson's paste wax work better with Krylon or Gunk (it was always difficult to put something with that name on a board) silicone spray? What number Krylon (they had two).

How many times could you put paste wax on before it had to be stripped off?

I worked in a tavern in the late '70s where the owner bought a new wood board. It was a beauty, came with one of the first digital scoreboards.

But, it was slower than asphalt at first.

It came with a 24-can variety pack of powder. Some of that powder looked like corn meal. It was horrible. In fact, most everything in that variety pack was pretty bad. And none of it made that new shuffleboard any faster.

Keep the plastic, make mine wood

And then someone older, and wise enough to stay away from the work part, revealed the truth. "You gotta build up a good base of paste wax before it's ever gonna run good."

The board arrived just before we were going to have a tournament at the tavern where I worked and the one across the street. We each had one board.

The plank was still slow for the tournament and I think a lot of the players were happy to go across the street to the other tavern because the board there was quick.

We ended up with 27 teams in that tournament and when it came down to the end, the team that won the flip chose to play on the slower board.

Over the course of a couple of years, "my" board got faster and faster. I wouldn't venture a guess as to how many cans of paste wax went on its surface.

But taking care of that board had some big advantages. When you're applying and buffing the paste wax off with a board by hand you get a pretty intimate knowledge of its character. Each little ridge or valley that developed as the wood changed with the weather and age revealed itself to your fingertips and sometimes that knowledge helped win a game.

I hope we aren't moving toward a time when plastic replaces wood completely.
