The ezine of table shuffleboard

WEDNESDAY JULY 28, 2004

Spread the word about shuffleboard

by Jim Manders, publisher

One of my regular duties at the newspaper — Peninsula Daily News — is attending the Chamber of Commerce weekly meetings. I write stories from about one out of every three meetings depending on the speaker's subject.

I didn't write a story for the newspaper about yesterday's meeting because the subject was marketing, a topic probably not of general interest.

But, listening to the speaker

I realized that table shuffleboard needs a good healthy dose of marketing.

Everyone who plays table shuffleboard knows that it's a wonderful game. Think about how difficult table shuffleboard is.

Have you ever watched people who haven't tried the game as they try to get a weight down the board? Usually the weights sail off the end of the board, tumble into the trough or stop well before the foul line. It doesn't take long before the "Oh my God" look shows up on their faces and for many it doesn't take long before they've moved over to the pool table or dart board.

A friend says tournament table shuffleboard players are "highly tuned professional tavern athletes." That evaluation is right on the mark.

Very few people who "can't play" compete in tournament shuffleboard. That handful usually doesn't last long because it's just too difficult. There are a lot of very good table shuffleboard players who are "in the money" in very many tournaments because of the high level of competition.

The point I'm trying to make is that people who play shuffleboard — at any level -- should be proud of themselves or our accomplishments. It's a "big deal" to get the weights from one end of the board to the other and an even bigger deal to know where they're going. That's not said in jest.

Yet, on the whole we're kind of esoteric about shuffleboard. We play, we have fun but we're keeping our greatness to ourselves when we should be crowing about our game.

That's where marketing comes in. And marketing is just sharing information.

Bowling and pool are two great examples of how marketing can bring money to a sport.

The Professional Bowler's Ass'n. in the past few years have changed the image of tournament bowling, making it more attractive to people. Attendance, and purses, has grown because of marketing.

Promoters pool and billiards have been able to grow that game to the point where there's some pretty good prize money for televised tournaments.

It's not all about the money. Exposing people to table shuffleboard will attract some to give it a try and a few who do

Billy Melton tournament postponed

HOUSTON — Billy Melton's 2nd Annual "Don't Sing It, Bring It" tournament has been postponed because several of the top professional players were unable to make the Aug. 19 date.

The tournament was scheduled to be played at the Triple Crown Sports Bar.

A new date, later in the year, will be set in the near future.

The tournament with a $1,000 entry fee for singles and $600 for doubles attracted many of the country's top-rated professional players a year ago.

After speaking to many of the pros, we have decided to postpone the 2nd Annual Billy Melton "Don't Sing It Bring It"

Tourney to a date to be named later in the year.

Tournament sponsors are presently notifying all players who had committed to attend. They ask that Lagging 4s readers pass the word to any prospective players that were planning to attend but had not pre-registered or notified them.

Spreading the word about 'our' game

will stay with the game.

Before I get to some strategies I think might work in promoting our game, I need to acknowledge — and I've been told — that some people don't want exposure.

Some are concerned about exposure of lifestyles that aren't necessarily connected to shuffleboard. The solution to that is simple. Don't step into the camera's light or avoid the reporter working on a story if you aren't comfortable with publicity.

Here are some of my thoughts about marketing our game:

- Simple. Talk to your friends who don't play. Ask them to come watch you at a tournament. Be proud to be a table shuffleboard player.

- * Easy. Send advance notices of tournaments to Lagging4s and the Board Talk. And when the tournament finished, send results as soon as possible. The plug: Lagging4s is published weekly which means you can publish your results within days of the tournament.

- More difficult, but doable. If you're putting on a tournament, contact the local newspaper or television station a couple of weeks in advance to see if they'll give you a notice and possibly do a feature story on a willing local player. It's more difficult if your local newspaper is the Los Angeles Times, but there are usually weekly newspapers covering separate communities that might be interested. The same thing with television. The major network affiliates might not be interested but in the larger markets there's usually an independent station around that would be willing to do a short segment. Cable television providers sometimes have news shows that are often looking for footage and public television is another available market, although usually small.

- Spend a little. Buy an advertisement in the newspaper or on the television telling people about an upcoming event. Again, look for the smaller places as a way of saving money.

There's probably a million more ways to market table shuffleboard, if we want.
