Galen Gaunce

Galen Gaunce passed away a while back and as I was going through some memorabilia I ran across this poem that Galen wrote. A friend of his passed away and was such a good person that Galen couldn't understand why God took his friend and not the others that were in the car accident. This poem was transpired from that particular act of God. I just want people to know how sensitive and intelligent Galen was.

Why Me?

A rose lies crushed in garden's path
Bleeding out his soul
And cried to God in a sorrowful tone,
Questioning his toll.
Why am I the one that's crushed? What great sin is done?
I have lived a righteous life. Why am I the one?
A shining light struck his face, singing rang from above
And God threw forth a powerful voice;
A voice that's filled with love.
Why question birds who fall in flight, drop and strike the earth.
Or babies who have not seen light die before their birth.
All of this is meant to be. Do not ask me why.
Here on earth man calls it faith, never let that die.

The rose looked up and smiled at God and then lay down its head and died
With its mind at rest
Believing what was said.

Created by Galen Gaunce and dedicated to Michelle Foran

July 22-23, 2006 (Ernie's Fir Cone, Shelton, WA):

Every once in a while a great idea comes along. Usually, however, no one knows that it is a great idea until after the fact. Example; RCA records thought Elvis Presley was a passing fad. That's kind of what happened in Shelton this weekend. Shuffleboard tournaments in the Pacific Northwest have been suffering low turnouts for a while. Promoters are worried about the future of the game and scrambling to find ways to protect their investments. In a simple effort towards that end, they happened upon success. Sort of a Pro-Am type of event where rated players have to find non-rated players to be their partners. The result: Wow!

Everyone was amazed at the number of non-rated players that have an interest in the game. Ernie's Fir Cone saw numbers it hasn't seen since the late 90s. All the promoters agree that they were unprepared for this kind of a turn-out. Like RCA Records, they didn't see the potential. They do now.

Hind sight is 20/20, and rumor has it that more of these type of tournaments are in the works. That's alright with Mike Waters and his partner Helen Bryant who won the tournament. Ryan Devlin and Jeff Smith settled for second. Ernie's Fir Cone Owner Ernie Montoya and Northwest hall of famer Frank Mako ended a great weekend in third. Fourth place went to the team of Jim "007" Thorton and Russ Frazier. Tied for fifth place was Carolyn Floyd and Evelyn and the team of Claire Kenney and her daughter Renee. The tournament was masterfully run by Clark Kenney, the best tournament director on earth.

Ernie (Fir Cone owner) would like to express his thanks to the Promoters, the Tournament Director, and the Shelton Shuffleboard community for their support and dedication to keeping shuffleboard alive. Ernie also went on to express his thanks for the players (See Next Page for Participant List) whom he describes as all winners and wanted to have them all recognized. Players came from Shelton, Olympia, Port Orchard, Gig Harbor, Bremerton, Tahuya, Tacoma, Seattle, Spokane, and Portland. Winner's Photo follow:

Port Orchard, WA: The 3rd annual Jack Steffensen Tournament was held September 22nd through the 24th at The Blue Goose and Red Dog Taverns in Port Orchard, WA. The Blue Goose is a cozy little tavern nestled on the shores of Puget Sound with beautiful scenery abounding and lots of room for RV parking. The Goose is also home to two good boards with lots of character. The Red Dog is up the hill from the Goose. It also has two good boards. Transportation is provided from tavern to tavern for those who need it. Thanks for the rides Mike, everyone really appreciates it. Linda Steffensen would like to thank Dee Hudson, the owner of the taverns, for letting her have the tournament there.

This tournament is definitely one of the best tournaments in Washington with a promise to be even bigger and better next year. The tournament boasted 27 teams with 12 in the A division and 15 in the B division. The winners were...

The Friday night draw was won by Elaine Hill (from Canada) and Alvin Orcutt. Second place Friday draw was won by Clark Kenney and Dave Neal. The lagging 4's contest, sponsored by the Sportsmanship Committee, was won by Mario Briones. Mario lagged 3 4's and they were all against Linda Steffensen. Wow, that couldn't have been good for Linda.

The pot luck was delicious with chicken and salad served on Sunday. A big thank you to all of the people who generously donated to the pot luck. We couldn't have done it without you. There were also door prizes. A lovely painting donated by Claire Kenney and won by Gary George and binoculars with a built in digital camera was won by Carolyn Floyd.

As you can see lots of entertaining things going on at this terrific tournament and like I said, more to come next year!

Hope to see you there!!!

19th Annual Mixed Doubles
Ernie's Fir Cone
Shelton, WA
By Arnold Rimmer

On a cold rainy weekend in Western Washington, barely one week after the NASC in Reno a band of weary shuffleboard warriors gathered at Ernie's Fir Cone to do battle and lay claim to the Mixed Doubles Title. But, it almost didn't happen. While the NASC was taking place in Reno, Western Washington was under siege from the worst storm to hit the area in 50 years. So much rain had fallen in such a short time that the governor declared a state of emergency. Flights from Reno were delayed up to a minimum of three hours, sparking fears that there could be stranded shuffleboard players, and the turn out at Ernie's would be really small.

Come on, did you really think that 10 days of doing nothing but playing shuffleboard and a natural disaster would stop the faithful from showing up at Ernie's? Some players had to make multiple stops and finally cruse into Sea-Tac on a puddle jumper with only nine seats. The show must go on.

The show did go on; everyone that's anyone in Western Washington was at Ernie's Fir Cone. What a turn out. It was tremendous to see so many great players doing what ever it took to be there. You could tell that the players were tired, worn-out, and waterlogged by their demeanor and sluggishness between matches, but while they were playing you would have thought that this was their first time, what enthusiasm and excitement. All the participants will tell you that this was the most fun they had playing shuffleboard in a long time, if you missed it - shame on you.

Due to all the dedicated shuffleboard players at Ernie's it was impossible to finish the tournament. Therefore, first place was a split between Claire and Clark Kenney and Jeanette and Mel Hohn. Third place went to the team of Jennifer King and Mike Waters. Penny Jorgensen and Dick Doak from Shelton finished in fourth place. Fifth place was a tie between Tim and Sharon Nugent and the team of Frank and Carolyn Floyd.

Ernie would like thank the multitude of players and the Shelton Shuffleboard Community for their tireless support. The next tournament at Ernie's Fir Cone will be the Washington State Tournament on December 7 thru 10, 2006. For more info contact Ernie at 360-426-2221.

No one in Washington can explain it, but for some unknown reason Washington has not had a State Tournament since 2002. Dean Johnson from Shelton ask the question, "why?" Not receiving a suitable answer, he set out to do something about it. Therefore, he assembled a team responsible for the coordination of efforts.

First, we needed to find a place to hold the event (a sponsor)...

Ernie Montoya owner of Ernie's Fir Cone in Shelton was honored to sponsor the event. Ernie rearranged his bar to accommodate two more boards, and even went as far as getting a hard liquor licenses.

Next, we had to find two extra boards. Carl Roush and Dick Doak of Shelton provided the boards. Now, we had to gather up the equipment and people necessary to move two boards and decide on a format that would include as many Washington players as possible.

Last and certainly not least, we needed to promote the event. This is really easy in Washington because of Sharon Nugent. Sharon has worked really hard on developing an internet network to dispense just this type of information to as many players as possible. Dean said that if he had known how easy this all was, he would have done it years ago. However, now that the ball is moving again, the real work begins. Finding people to keep it moving.

This years Tournament was a success because of the efforts of all those involved, the players, and our excellent 2006 Sponsor Olympic Shuffleboard. A special thanks goes to Clark Kenney. Clark worked four solid days moving boards, adjusting boards, finding bracket boards, running the tournament, playing, and yes he even sold popcorn at halftime. His only pay is our respect and admiration.

State Tournament Schedule

Due to the fact that this important tournament has slipped through the cracks. Mel Hohn has decided to keep it going. Below is a proposed schedule. Note that four boards will be required to run this event. If you have any input or suggestions e-mail Mel at m.hohn@comcast.net. No Complaints accepted.

2006 - Shelton
2007 - Port Orchard
2008 - Sea-Tac
2009 - Kelso/Longview
2010 - Tacoma
2011 - Olympia

Mel is trying to compose a History of the State Tournament. If you have winner names and years in either division please let Mel know at the above e-mail address. Finally, these Tournament cost money to put on, therefore all money rising ideas or sponsors are welcome. Mel has some good future ideas to make this the most important tournament for Washington players. He needs your help.

Shuffling the competition

Story by MARTA MURVOSH, Photos by Frank Varga / Skagit Valley Herald

Interest from youth breathes new life into old-time sport

If John Martin offers to play shuffleboard blindfolded, don't do it for money — you're likely to lose it.

Do it to learn from a man who has spent 48 years shooting puck-like weights down a longboard. His love of competition and skill have ranked him in the top 5 percent of shuffleboard players in the nation.

Martin doesn't need his sight to be a winner. All he needs is another player telling him where the weights are on the board.

"It's not a game of sight," the 68-year-old Martin said. "It's a game of touch."

Players like Martin, as well as a bevy of newcomers to the game, are keeping shuffleboard alive and well in Skagit County, said Phil DePree, secretary-treasurer of the Skagit Valley Longboard Association. The league has about 130 members who compete at least once a week at five taverns around the valley. Martin and other experienced players are teaching younger shuffleboard newcomers the lay of the longboards and the intricacies of shooting the puck-like weights for points.

Shuffleboard player Rachel McCrery learned from her mother, father and stepfather. She plays on a team with other 20- and 30-somethings.

"There's only a handful of us kids who play," said the 23-year-old bartender. "Sometimes we get beat really bad. Sometimes we do all right."

Shuffleboard appears to be undergoing a revival in Skagit County. Competitive spirit unites the players, no matter their age.

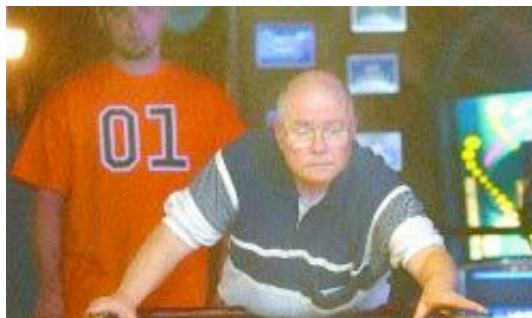

That's what first attracted bartender Wesley Drake, 27, of Anacortes to the game nine months ago.

"I'm a competitive guy," said Drake, who first saw the game while tending bar. "If they say they are good at something, I've got to try and beat them." Many people think of shuffleboard as a game played by senior citizens on cruise ships or in beach-front resort towns.

But the shuffleboard that Martin and Drake play is found in taverns, restaurants and family game centers. Rather than a wooden deck, they use a longboard on legs that elevate it to the level of an average person's waist.

Tom "Frog" Nordland lets a weight fly during a shuffleboard match at the Old Edison Inn in Edison. Nordland and about 130 other Skagitians compete in shuffleboard matches once or twice a week as part of the Skagit Valley Longboard Association.

Each player starts off with four weights. The goal is to hand-push the weights into the highest-scoring area without sending them off the end of the board.

Mike Conn prepares to send a puck-like weight down the shuffleboard.

Points — from one to four — are tallied depending on which of the three scoring sections a weight comes to rest on the board. A player earns four points if the weight comes to rest halfway off the end of the board without falling off.

Players can keep opponents from scoring by knocking their weights off the end of the board. Players also can use their own weights by placing them in front of another to protect a high-scoring weight.

Scores aren't tallied until each of the players' four weights are shot. The last shot, called the "lag shot," often decides the game. The first person to reach 15 points wins.

Four players at a time also may play in a doubles match. There are several variations on the basic game.

The game is complicated by "curves" in the board, which affect the direction that a weight travels, said Larry Sawyer, another top-ranked player. Sawyer, 67, of Anacortes won the 2001 North American Championship in Reno for Division 1, which is a ranking a step below professional.

"The really good players can make the shot when they need to," Sawyer said.

Competitive spirit seems to have attracted many players to the longboard association.

"I like the competition plus the comradeship and the friends you meet," Sawyer said.

When Martin first started out 48 years ago, he had to work hard to earn a spot on a team in Everett. It was the competition that kept him coming back, he said.

"I don't like to lose, so I started practicing," Martin said.

Others, such as 84-year-old Paddy Conn of Edison, just enjoy a good game with friends. Conn started playing in the late 1940s with friends. After moving to Skagit Valley, she and her late husband taught the game to their son, Mike Conn.

"If you go in with the idea you're going to win every game, you might as well not bother," Paddy Conn said.

There have been shuffleboard leagues in Skagit Valley since the 1950s, DePree said. Organized in 1992, the Skagit Valley Longboard Association is the most recent.

Once there were about 20 longboards in taverns and other businesses from Concrete to Anacortes, DePree said. There were leagues in Snohomish and King counties. But many leagues have disappeared as interest in the game has waned and other tavern sports have taken its place.

The movie "The Hustler" made playing coin-operated pool more popular than shuffleboard, DePree said. Tavern owners realized they could make more money from pool, which can be played in less time than shuffleboard, and began to replace the longboards with the green felt-covered tables, he said.

In Skagit County, shuffleboard playing has remained relatively steady. In 1981, the league had 23 teams, DePree said. Now, there are 19.

Drake said younger people aren't drawn to shuffleboard right away. But he said he thinks they can get sucked in over time.

"For the young, you've got to relax your muscles and chill out. It's hard to do," Drake said.

Patience is important, said Joe Paszkowski, a 33-year-old painter who was drawn to the game four years ago after injuries stopped him from playing baseball. He learned shuffleboard from his father, John, who has gotten serious about the sport. He said he plans to compete in Reno, where there is $300,000 in prize money up for grabs later this month. Like Joe Paszkowski's first love, baseball, shuffleboard has strategy and can be a thinking man's game.

"It's just a big chess game," Paszkowski said. "If I take this weight off, what happens?"
